

<https://businessmalta.com/koine-launches-at-malta-innovation-summit/6861/>

Koiné launches at Malta Innovation Summit

By Christian Keszthelyi

-

Tuesday, 29 October, 2019 at 12:19

Innovation platform Koiné was launched by the European Union's Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, according to a press statement sent to Business Malta. The Koiné Project was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of Innovation and Social Innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the ENISIE innovation platform aspires to serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders.

The Koiné platform aims to be an enabler for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose.

Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

“The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism,” said Joseph P. Sammut, Chairman and Founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, upon the launch.

The project ENISIE ‘Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement’ is supported by the European Union’s Program INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

<http://josannecassar.com/events/koine-innovation-platform-launched-at-malta-innovation-summit-2019/>

29.10.2019

KOINÉ INNOVATION PLATFORM LAUNCHED AT MALTA INNOVATION SUMMIT 2019

Pictured: Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions, and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Malta Life Sciences Park
Social Innovators are being invited to visit the newly launched Koiné Platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs. Launched by the EU Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of Innovation and Social Innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the ENISIE innovation platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Chairman and Founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said: “The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism.”

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose as described at the Malta Innovation Summit by Ms. Diana Spiteri - IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut - Malta Life Sciences Park.

The project ENISIE 'Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement' is supported by the European Union's Program INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

For further information and registration, please visit www.koine.me/en or contact one of the project partners.

Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions, and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Malta Life Sciences Park, presenting the Koiné Platform during the Malta Innovation Summit 2019.

Innovation platform launched to bring social innovators together

Social Innovators are being invited to visit the newly-launched Koiné Platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs.

Launched by the EU Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of innovation and social innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the ENISIE innovation platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

"The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region," Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, chairman and founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said.

"Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism," he added.

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose.

The project ENISIE 'Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement' is supported by the European Union's programme INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

<https://timesofmalta.com/articles/view/innovation-platform-launched-to-bring-social-innovators-together.745758>

Innovation platform launched to bring social innovators together

30 October 2019

Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions, and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Malta Life Sciences Park, presenting the Koiné Platform during the Malta Innovation Summit 2019.

Social Innovators are being invited to visit the newly- launched Koiné Platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs.

Launched by the EU Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of innovation and social innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the ENISIE innovation platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

“The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region,” Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, chairman and founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said.

“Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism,” he added.

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose.

The project ENISIE ‘Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement’ is supported by the European Union’s programme INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

Koiné innovation platform launched at the Malta Innovation Summit 2019 to bring social innovators together

TMI / 30-10-2019 (60C)

Social Innovators are being invited to visit the newly launched Koiné Platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs. Launched by the EU Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of Innovation and Social Innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the ENISIE innovation platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Chairman and

Founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said: "The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism."

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose as described at the Malta Innovation Summit by Ms. Diana Spiteri – IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut – Malta Life Sciences Park.

The project ENISIE 'Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement' is supported by the European Union's Program INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

For further information and registration, please visit www.koine.me/en or contact one of the project partners.

The network

A network of companies, professionals, stakeholders, organizations and spaces. A network open to exchange, comparison and the creation of new relationships. A network to buy and sell services and products. Become part of it, seize the opportunities of others and offer yours

All categories

Private companies

Innovation Spaces

Professionals

Stakeholders

Organizations

Do a targeted search, use the categories. Hover your mouse over each category to find out what you can find there

Koiné platform brings together social innovators in Med region

A new platform is bringing together innovators in the Mediterranean region by creating a network of individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces operating in the field.

Koiné, an innovation platform launched at the Malta Innovation Summit 2019 in October, aims to bring social innovations together by creating a bridge between all fields of innovation and social innovation in the Mediterranean.

Available in English and Italian, the new platform is striving to serve as a hub for the innovator community, providing a place where innovators can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders.

Registration is free of charge and gives access for those in the sector to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

Announcing the platform at the Summit, Malta Life Sciences Chairperson and founder Joseph P Sammut said the platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, to encourage the exchange of services and good practices and to stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region.

"Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism," Sammut said.

Koiné was launched by the EU's project ENISIE (Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement), which is supported by the Interreg V-A Italia-Malta 2014-2020 funding programme.

Koiné innovation platform launched at the Malta Innovation Summit 2019 to bring social innovators together

TMBW / 31-10-2019 (65C)

Social innovators are being invited to visit the newly launched Koiné Platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs.

Launched by the EU Interreg project Enisie within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of Innovation and Social Innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the Enisie innovation platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders.

Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Malta Life Sciences Park, presenting the Koiné Platform during the Malta Innovation Summit 2019

Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, chairman and founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said: "The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism."

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose as described at the Malta Innovation Summit by Diana Spiteri – IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut – Malta Life Sciences Park.

The project Enisie Enabling network-based innovation through services and institutional engagement is supported by the European Union's Programme Interreg V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

For further information and registration visit www.koine.me/en or contact one of the project partners.

<https://www.independent.com.mt/articles/2019-10-31/business-news/Koine-innovation-platform-launched-at-the-Malta-Innovation-Summit-2019-to-bring-social-innovators-to-6736215518>

Koiné innovation platform launched at the Malta Innovation Summit 2019 to bring social innovators to

Thursday, 31 October 2019, 10:15Last update: about 4 hours ago

Social innovators are being invited to visit the newly launched Koiné Platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs.

Launched by the EU Interreg project Enisie within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of Innovation and Social Innovation

Available in English and Italian, the Enisie innovation platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, chairman and founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said: "The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism."

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose as described at the Malta Innovation Summit by Diana Spiteri - IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut - Malta Life Sciences Park.

The project Enisie Enabling network-based innovation through services and institutional engagement is supported by the European Union's Programme Interreg V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

For further information and registration visit www.koine.me/en or contact one of the project partners.

Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions, and Joseph P. Sammut presenting the Koiné platform during the Malta Innovation Summit 2019.

Koiné innovation platform launched at Malta Innovation Summit

Social Innovators are being invited to visit the newly launched Koiné platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs. Launched by the EU Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of innovation and social innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities and exchange expertise and best practices with various stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to myriad online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

“The platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network and find new opportunities”

Joseph Sammut, chairman and founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said: “The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism.”

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose as described at the Malta Innovation Summit by Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Sammut.

The project ENISIE ‘Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement’ is supported by the EU’s Programme INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

For more information and registration, visit www.koine.me/en or contact one of the project partners.

<https://timesofmalta.com/articles/view/koine-innovation-platform-launched-at-malta-innovation-summit.746925>

Koiné innovation platform launched at Malta Innovation Summit

3 November 2019 | 0

Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions, and Joseph P. Sammut presenting the Koiné platform during the Malta Innovation Summit 2019.

Social Innovators are being invited to visit the newly launched Koiné platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs. Launched by the EU Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta

Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of innovation and social innovation. Available in English and Italian, the platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities and exchange expertise and best practices with various stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to myriad online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

The platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network and find new opportunities

Joseph Sammut, chairman and founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said: “The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism.”

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose as described at the Malta Innovation Summit by Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Sammut.

The project ENISIE ‘Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement’ is supported by the EU’s Programme INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

For more information and registration, visit www.koine.me/en or contact one of the project partners.

Lifestyle & Culture

Caption: Diana Spiteri, IURIS Business Solutions, and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Malta Life Sciences Park, presenting the Koiné Platform during the Malta Innovation Summit 2019

Koiné innovation platform launched at the Malta Innovation Summit 2019

Social Innovators are being invited to visit the newly launched Koiné Platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs. Launched by the EU Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of Innovation and Social Innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the ENISIE innovation platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Chairman and Founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said: "The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism."

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose as described at the Malta Innovation Summit by Ms. Diana Spiteri – IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut – Malta Life Sciences Park.

The project ENISIE 'Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement' is supported by the European Union's Program INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

For further information and registration, please visit www.koine.me/en or contact one of the project partners.

<https://www.independent.com.mt/articles/2019-11-05/newspaper-lifestyleculture/Koine-innovation-platform-launched-at-the-Malta-Innovation-Summit-2019-6736215726>

Koiné innovation platform launched at the Malta Innovation Summit 2019

Tuesday, 5 November 2019, 09:57Last update: about 1 hour ago

Social Innovators are being invited to visit the newly launched Koiné Platform (www.koine.me/en) and join the ever-growing network of professionals, organisations and innovation hubs. Launched by the EU Interreg project ENISIE within the margins of the Malta Innovation Summit 2019, the innovation platform was created to serve as a bridge between all the realities in the Mediterranean area operating in the fields of Innovation and Social Innovation.

Available in English and Italian, the ENISIE innovation platform will serve as a hub for the community of innovators where they can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders. Registration is free of charge and open to individual professionals, organisations, companies and innovation spaces who can avail themselves to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

Ing. Joseph P. Sammut, Chairman and Founder of the Malta Life Sciences Park, said: "The innovation platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, encourage the exchange of services and good practices and stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region. Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism."

The Koiné platform is therefore one of the enablers for communities to stimulate, stir and disrupt businesses with opportunities for innovative services and products, eventually contributing to the shift from business with profit to business with purpose as described at the Malta Innovation Summit by Ms. Diana Spiteri - IURIS Business Solutions and Ing. Joseph P. Sammut - Malta Life Sciences Park.

The project ENISIE 'Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement' is supported by the European Union's Program INTERREG V-A Italia Malta 2014-2020.

For further information and registration, please visit www.koine.me/en or contact one of the project partners.

https://www.businesstoday.com.mt/business/business/522/koin\_platform\_brings\_together\_social\_innovators\_in\_med\_region#.XcJ2oFVKjcs

Koiné platform brings together social innovators in Med region

A new platform is bringing together innovators in the Mediterranean region by creating a network of individual professionals, organisation, companies and innovation spaces operating in the field

6 November 2019, 7:00am

A new platform is bringing together innovators in the Mediterranean region by creating a network of individual professionals, organisation, companies and innovation spaces operating in the field.

Koiné, an innovation platform launched at the Malta Innovation Summit 2019 in October, aims to bring social innovations together by creating a bridge between all fields of innovation and social innovation in the Mediterranean.

Available in English and Italian, the new platform is striving to serve as a hub for the innovator community, providing a place where innovators can sell or buy products and services, expand their network, find new opportunities, exchange expertise and best practices with different types of stakeholders.

Registration is free of charge and gives access for those in the sector to a myriad of online resources including experimental innovations services, social innovation best practices and innovation tools.

Announcing the platform at the Summit, Malta Life Sciences chairperson and founder Joseph P Sammut said the platform was designed to support and promote a stable system of networking, to encourage the exchange of services and good practices and to stimulate cross-border synergies in the EU-Mediterranean region.

“Besides providing a potential basis for business growth, a key component of this project is to accelerate social innovation in crucial areas such as food, digital health and sustainable tourism,” Sammut said.

Koiné was launched by the EU’s project ENISIE (Enabling Network-based Innovation through Services and Institutional Engagement), which is supported by the Interreg V-A Italia-Malta 2014-2020 funding programme.